

Seating dispute marks opening of General Assembly

HARRISBURG (AP) — The politically divided General Assembly convened its 1969 session Tuesday with the traditional opening day spirit of bipartisanship marred by a seating dispute in the Senate.

The wrangling resulted in an hour-and-a-half delay in Gov. Shafer's annual State of the Commonwealth address which he delivered to a joint session of the Senate and House.

The Republican governor, faced with a House controlled by Democrats during the last two years of his administration, urged the lawmakers to put aside partisan differences and take up the work that lies before them.

Shafer outlined several areas, including education, which would require new legislation, but he made no direct reference to a possible need for new taxes. The governor presents his budget message later this month.

Majority Republicans defeated a Democratic move aimed at enabling W. Louis Coppersmith, Johnstown attorney, to be seated as senator from the 35th district after his opponent in the Nov. 5 election filed a challenge in the State Supreme Court.

Democrats demanded that Coppersmith's 54-vote victory over Republican incumbent Richard J. Green Jr. be certified on grounds that Cambria County Common Pleas Court had dismissed Green's challenge Monday.

Republicans noted, however, that Green had filed an appeal with the state's highest court and turned back the Democratic parliamentary tactic on a 26-21 straight party vote.

While the two parties bickered in the Senate over the seating of Coppersmith, the atmosphere in the House was one of good will that crossed party lines.

Rep. Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia, was elected to the $22,000-a-year post as speaker by a unanimous vote with Republicans hailing the choice as a good one.

"They have chosen well," said outgoing Speaker Kenneth B. Lee, R-Sullivan. "They have picked their best."

Fineman, a state legislator since 1955, was slated to preside over the House the next two years after his party wrested control of the chamber from Republicans in the November balloting.

Rep. K. Leroy Irvis, D-Allegheny, assumed the post of majority leader, becoming the first Negro in the history of the state to hold such a high legislative position.

Rep. Lee A. Donaldson Jr., R-Allegheny, who served as majority leader the past two years of GOP rule took his place as leader of the House minority.

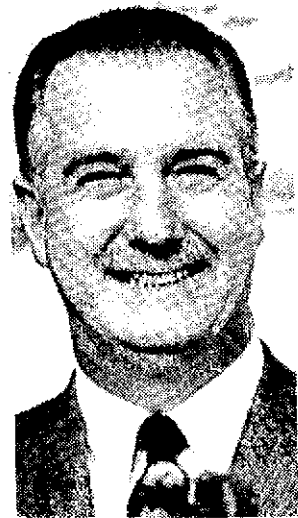

In the Senate, there was no change of leadership. Sen. Robert D. Fleming, R-Allegheny, was re-elected president pro tempore. Sens. Stanley G. Stroup, R-Bedford, and Ernest P. Kline, D-Beaver, retained their party leadership posts.

Spiro T. Agnew

Agnew to erase old image

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew predicts that after a year in office it will be difficult for people to think of him as "the Neanderthal man."

He said the thought of suddenly becoming president doesn't scare him.

"I fully feel," Agnew said, "that by the time a year has gone by and I'll have been functioning in this expanded vice president's role that's been given me, and particularly in regard to intergovernmental relationships with the cities, that what I do and what I stand for is going to be so obvious that it's going to be very difficult for the people who are attempting to cast me in the role of the Neanderthal man to continue to think that way."

The vice president-elect said, however, that he was so "depressed" by criticism at one point during the campaign that he wondered if he could get up the next day and go through it. He said he decided he had to "develop a little skin" and had no trouble after that.

Agnew made his remarks in an interview televised Tuesday night on the CBS program "60 Minutes." It had been recorded a week ago in Washington.

Agnew was asked if he might feel at all like former President Harry S. Truman felt at the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt, that "the sun and moon and stars had fallen on him."

"I'd like to say—I'd like to appear supermodest and say yes, but I can't in good conscience," Agnew answered.

"The biggest fright I ever had in government," he continued, "was the first office I went to, since then it's been on a more serious nature and expanded basis, additional responsibilities but the name of the game in government is basically the same."

Agnew conceded that he contributed little to recent foreign policy discussions with President-elect Nixon and other top persons.

Governor warns of partisan fight

Lawmakers urged to work together

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sounding a note of pacification, Gov. Shafer called on the newly convened General Assembly Tuesday to put away partisan differences, solve current problems and share "the prosperity of the 1970s."

Shafer outlined in generalizations the programs he will present to the 153rd session and thanked the lawmakers for drafting the portions of his "Pennsylvania Plan" which have been approved in the first two years of his administration.

But, the governor said, "we have come to a point in the affairs of the Commonwealth where attitudes are polarizing."

"One group says progress be damned. Stop wasting our money. And at the other end, there are those who say we are affluent and have all the money we need to solve our problems if we will only part with it. For Pennsylvania's sake, we must find the way to reconcile this conflict."

Shafer ticked off "the legacy of achievement" left by the last two legislative sessions, embracing the fields of constitutional revision, human rights, conservation, insurance reform, consumer protection, job opportunities, industrial development.

The possibility of higher taxes to fund new, or expanded or previously mandated programs was not mentioned directly. Shafer referred to reports of "long and bitter partisan battles."

"And I trust that reason, and desire to do what is best for Pennsylvania, will overcome any desire for partisan gain."

The Republican governor called inferential attention to the switch in party control which gave the House to the Democrats, saying:

"The people have spoken, and new responsibility alignments in the General Assembly have been made. As governor, I intend to fulfill my duty to all the people, as I know you will fulfill your duty to all your constituents."

Stock market continues drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Jolted by still another boost in basic interest rates, the stock market declined sharply again Tuesday.

Trading was heavy.

The market was resuming its retreat after Monday's steep decline when surprise news came that the big commercial banks were advancing the prime rate for loans to a new record of 7 per cent from the previous record of 6 1/2 per cent. It was the third time since Dec. 2 this rate had been raised.

Highlights of Shafer's speech

HARRISBURG (AP) — Highlights of Gov. Shafer's State of the Commonwealth message to the General Assembly Tuesday:

"The legacy of achievement left by the last two sessions is one of substance, of solid progress that will continue to have long range effects on our Commonwealth."

"The first goal (of the new session) is economic growth and our preparation for technological change to provide jobs and income for our citizens and improve each citizen's standard of living."

"Our second goal is the improvement of living conditions in our communities and the quality of our environment."

"I am convinced that we must have a totally integrated passenger and freight transportation system or we will continue to face urban sprawl, limited areas for economic growth and ultimately the death of the Ports of Philadelphia, Erie and Pittsburgh."

"Just as important to Philadelphia and Southeast Pennsylvania is the development of a new tri-state port authority between New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania."

"We are at the present time discussing with Chrysler Corporation the possibility of developing the Commonwealth's first major new town at the site of the new automobile assembly plant near New Stanton."

"The third goal of the Pennsylvania Plan is the improvement of the status of each individual through equal opportunity, better education and the elimination of discrimination on the basis of race."

"There are three (education) priority items that were considered but not enacted in the past two years."

"First is the establishment of a modern school administration system through Intermediate Units."

"Second is the creation of a single Board of Directors for our State College system."

"Finally, I will resubmit legislation aimed at eliminating conflicts with reference to two-year campuses."

An apprehensive Sirhan B. Sirhan, right, led by one of his attorneys, Russell Parsons, leaves the cell area of the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice to enter an elevator that took him to the the 8th floor and a heavily guarded courtroom where he is on trial on charges of assassinating Sen. Robert Kennedy last year.

Sirhan calm during trial as lawyers seek delays

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's trial on a charge of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy sputtered through opening-day legalities Tuesday with the defense obtaining a day's delay.

The delay will give Sirhan's lawyers time to write out a request to set aside his plea of innocent and obtain a new list of prospective jurors.

His lawyers were denied a request for two juries, one to decide Sirhan's guilt or innocence, the other to set the penalty if he is convicted.

They also were denied a 30-day delay to prepare the motion on his plea and the jury list.

"It would be silly to deny he did it," one Sirhan attorney, Grant B. Cooper, told newsmen after the hour-and-a-half court session.

The slight, 24-year-old Jordanian, accused in the fatal shooting of the New Yorker last June 5 at the Ambassador Hotel, was led by sheriff's deputies into the eighth-floor courtroom after an elevator ride from his heavily-guarded, 13th-floor cell.

Neatly dressed in a gray suit, white, buttoned-down shirt and blue tie, he waved to his attorneys and sat next to them at the left end of a long counsel table.

At the rear wall directly behind him, his stocky mother Mary and dapper brother Muir, 21, occupied two of the courtroom's 75 spectator seats.

The proceedings opened at 9:42 a.m. and ended at 11:15 a.m. Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ordered a postponement until 2 p.m. today.

The defense proposal for a 30-day delay came when attorney Cooper asked that Sirhan's plea of innocent be set aside "for the sole and only purpose of making a motion to quash the indictment."

He said some jurors might be able to try Sirhan on the question of his guilt or innocence, but might have inflexible opinions about the death penalty.

Lynn D. Compton, chief deputy district attorney, argued that "We have one trial here. The jury is going to be asked to decide his guilt or innocence and punishment. Nothing is indicated here to deviate from standard formula."

"The law is a living, growing thing," Cooper replied. "What the law was yesterday is not necessarily the law today."

Judge Walker denied the separate-juries motion but told Cooper that after Sirhan's guilt-or-innocence is determined he again could make the motion for a separate jury to determine penalty.

Judge Walker also turned down a Cooper motion that prospective jurors be interrogated with written questions.

The trial began with a closed session at Cooper's request in Walker's chambers, with prosecution and defense counsel and Sirhan present. It lasted 30 minutes, but its purpose was not explained in court. Attorneys for both sides said the judge ordered them not to discuss it.

Sirhan is charged with shooting Kennedy and wounding five bystanders.

Passengers escaped through the windows. Some had to be helped by rescuers, but none was trapped in the vehicle.

A Greyhound spokesman said the Washington-to-New York runs started using Interstate 295 only today.

Michael West, 18, of Newport News, Va., a student at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., said he was chatting with another Rensselaer student, Barry Graubard, 18, of Alexandria, Va., when the bus overturned. Both were returning to classes after winter vacation.

West said the bus struck the right shoulder of the ramp, skidded across the roadway into the roadway into the left shoulder and toppled on its left side, blocking the Freeway.

Police and rescue teams arrived at the scene by the time West and Graubard managed to climb from the vehicle.

Interest rate hits 7 per cent

NEW YORK (AP) — Leading banks boosted the prime interest rate to a record seven per cent Tuesday in another effort to slow the surging economy by making it more expensive to borrow money.

It was the second increase in this rate—the interest charged big, solidly rated borrowers such as corporations—since Dec. 18 when it went up to 6 1/2 per cent from 6 per cent.

These three rates are the highest that American borrowers have had to pay.

While the prime rate applies directly to big borrowers, the higher interest charges sooner or later will seep down to the consumer who buys and finances a house, an automobile, a refrigerator, or furniture, or obtains a personal loan.

An economist said, "The whole family of interest rates is structured upward by an increase in the prime rate."

The new upward move in the prime rate was initiated by First National City Bank of New York—one of the country's three biggest banks.

Other big New York banks quickly followed and were joined by others in Philadelphia, Birmingham, Atlanta, Boston, San Francisco and elsewhere.

The stock market slumped in reaction to the money squeeze. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 10.94 points to 925.72. This average—a widely watched barometer of stock market activity—has skidded steadily since it reached its 1968 high of 985.21 on Dec. 3.

Brokers attribute the stock market decline in part to fear of a credit crunch such as developed in 1956 when the lack of lending money put a crimp in the economy.

Rates won't affect area

STROUDSBURG — Three bankers in the Stroudsburg area Tuesday night saw no immediate effect resulting from the increase of the prime interest to seven per cent.

One executive said that if a big demand for loans existed the rate would go up — a supply and demand situation.

Two others representing savings and loan banks said that the increase wouldn't affect their institutions.

President delays acceptance

Lebanese premier quits over crisis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese-Israeli phase of the Middle East crisis led Premier Abdullah Yafi to submit his resignation to President Charles Helou Tuesday.

Helou delayed action on the resignation, an aftermath of criticism of Yafi's regime for the undefended state of Beirut's International Airport when Israeli commandos destroyed 13 Lebanese planes in a raid Dec. 28.

Yafi, 67, is a French-educated lawyer and one of the founders of the League of Arab States.

He has been chief of this half-Arab, half-Christian nation's government several times, the first in 1938-39.

Beirut newspapers said legislators favored a national coalition to replace him and his four-man cabinet.

There was speculation Yafi might be succeeded by Rashid Karami, a pro-Egyptian former premier. Karami led a Nasserite revolt against President Camille Chamoun in 1958. U.S. Marines, moved in by request of Chamoun, helped put down the civil war.

Dr. Yafi submitted his resignation because he believes a new situation demands a new government," a government spokesman said. "Big decisions have to be made and Dr. Yafi believes the president should have the opportunity of choosing a new man if he so wishes."

Israeli charges that the Lebanese are harboring and training Arab guerrillas has shifted attention lately to the 47-mile-long frontier between the two nations. The charges are denied in Beirut.

A conscription bill providing for the draft of all Lebanese on reaching 18 is before the government.

Israel's army announced in occupied Gaza. A spokesman said a hand grenade, tossed at an Israeli civilian car, missed its target and exploded in the road.

France's decision to cut off delivery of all military equipment to Israel, including spare parts of the Israeli air force's French-made Mystere and Mirage fighters, drew comment both critical and approving.

O'Brien chucks Dem Party reins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence F. O'Brien, who helped mastermind the Kennedy-Johnson election victories and Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign last fall, announced Tuesday his resignation as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

O'Brien accepted the chairmanship at Humphrey's insistence last August with the understanding he would serve through the election. However, he has been under considerable pressure from many leading Democrats including the President to stay on.

But he said in a letter dated last Saturday to Humphrey, as his party's titular leader, that "both professional and personal reasons compel me to accept" what he termed an outstanding opportunity in business. He said details will be announced later.

Humphrey said in reply he sincerely regrets O'Brien's decision to resign but that "I fully appreciate your reasons for doing so."

O'Brien's resignation is effective next Tuesday, when a successor is to be elected at the first meeting of the Democratic National Committee since Humphrey's narrow defeat by President-elect Nixon.

Humphrey is expected to play a considerable role in selection of the new chairman, whose primary concern will be working with state and local Democratic leaders to repair party machinery that fell into disuse during the Johnson administration.

The new chairman will also inherit the task of naming two special committees to reform party rules and procedures for selection of 1972 convention delegates. O'Brien said he will forward recommendations on the makeup of the committees.

Humphrey and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri discussed last year the possibility that Delton M. Houtchens, Missouri Democratic chairman, would succeed O'Brien, but Houtchens indicated recently he is no longer interested.

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., has suggested former Rep. John J. Gilligan, who lost a close race for the Senate in Ohio last November. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told reporters last Friday he thought there are a number of capable men available for the national chairmanship.

The 51-year-old O'Brien was chief White House liaison man with Congress for both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and was postmaster general for 2½ years before resigning last April to join Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign.

After Kennedy's assassination June 5 he joined Humphrey's organization.

Since his resignation from the Cabinet, O'Brien has not received a salary. However, he said in a postelection interview that money would not be the decisive factor in determining his future course.

Viets nab assassin suspect

SAIGON (AP) — A suspect in the assassination of Education Minister Le Minh Tri has been arrested, informed sources said Tuesday night. They described him as a South Vietnamese marine who was discharged last March after he suffered a combat wound.

A government spokesman asserted again, as he had Monday when Tri was killed by a bomb, that the assassination was the work of Communists. But this time he emphasized it was only his personal view.

However, if the man was an ex-marine, this would fan new speculation about motives for the bombing of Tri's car at a crowded Saigon street corner.

Many government and military officials said Tri's murder was political, and not necessarily the work of the Viet Cong. This was because the minister was caught up in controversy.

The sources said the discharged marine was arrested in military uniform. They added he had in his possession the minister's automobile license number and notes on his daily movements.

Tri, 46, a U.S.-educated physician, died 11 hours after the blast destroyed his car, killed his driver and injured three other persons.

Senate President Nguyen Van Thieu declared he was certain that the Communists were to blame, calling the bombing "part of a terror operation... aimed mainly at leading personalities of this republic."

But his National Assembly counterpart, Speaker Nguyen Ba Luong, said that he believed Tri's murder was "political." Tri's educational policies had been sharply criticized in the assembly.

The U.S. Command said 70 tons of munitions and weapons and 112 tons of rice have been found in nine days of sweep operations designed to keep the enemy off balance and prevent a new offensive. Most of the seizures were in the area around Saigon.

An ambush patrol of the U.S. 25th Division caught enemy forces in the darkness early Tuesday near Cu Chi, 19 miles northwest of Saigon, and killed 12, the U.S. Command said.

The Viet Cong entered an undefended village Monday 36 miles south of Saigon and took away 150 villagers.

'69 license tags said not faulty

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Bureau of Motor Vehicles thinks the problem of defective license plate stickers which plagued Pennsylvania motorists for most of 1968 has now been corrected.

Bureau Director L. T. Bernard said Tuesday that 1969 stickers were ordered early so that laboratory tests could be made by the Property and Supplies Department before distribution actually begins.

Last year's problem involved fading of the stickers, which are glued onto the motorist's metal license plate. Bernard estimated that about a third of the 1968 distribution went bad.

The bureau cooperated by offering replacement stickers free to licensees. Bernard added that police in Pennsylvania as well as other states cooperated by not prosecuting those with faulty stickers.

Bernard said state officials still have not pinpointed the cause of the trouble last year, but it had to do with loss of quality control in printing of the stickers.

The stickers are manufactured by the state-operated Prison Industries, and have been since the sticker system was established in 1950. Bernard said last year's experience was the first trouble encountered in all those years.

The 1969 stickers may be used on and after March 15. License notices will start going out around the last week of January.

Salaries questioned in Bangor

BANGOR — Bangor Borough street and sanitation employees appeared before council Monday night protesting the fact that no provision had been made in the borough's annual budget for hourly rate increases.

Council President Merlin Tucker explained to the men that the borough gave all employees of the borough insurance policies, a weekly sickness insurance program and other fringe benefits in place of the rate increase.

After a lengthy discussion, council agreed to review the program again in committee and through the finance and street committee make recommendations on the problem to the council.

Representatives of the Henry Lehr, Inc., insurance firm, formerly the Mildred Jago Agency, appeared before council to review and assure council on the validity of all insurance coverages of the borough. This firm continues to act as the broker of record for the borough insurance program.

John Cascioli of the street committee reported on routine repairs and council agreed that unless streets damaged by the construction firm installing the Roseto sewer system makes immediate and proper repair legal action will be taken.

Safety committee
The report of the safety committee was given by Frederick Jones. He announced that Second and Third streets from Market to West High Street will both be made one-way streets as soon as the proper signs are erected.

Rex Erdman told members of council that carpeting is being placed in the public library and Tro Riegel of the sanitation committee announced that Walter Pritchard, a borough employee for 27 years, will retire as of Feb. 1.

Bills totaling $5,261 were approved for payment. Mayor William D. Scott reported receipts of $1,440. For the month of December divided as follows: licenses $80; fines, $375; building and digging permits, $5; parking meters, $395; misc., $5. For the year the mayor's office reported total collections of $17,374.

Police chief reappointed in Roseto,

ROSETO — Anthony Pullo Monday night was re-elected police chief in Roseto by the borough council. He has served in that capacity for several years.

In other action, council accepted the resignation of assistant police chief Louis Casciano. Casciano is retiring and council named Lewis N. Martocci to succeed him.

Council then elected the following as patrolmen: Philip Ruggiero, Kenneth Phillips, and Pasquale Ronco.

Anthony Casciano was named health officer.

Salaries for the patrolmen and the health officer will be set at the February meeting.

Council noted that it is ready to select a plumbing inspector and will accept applications. All applicants must be residents of the borough.

Council also noted that the 1969 budget will be adopted at a meeting on a date to be announced.

Who can recall Dr. David Trach?

KRESGEVILLE — How many residents of Kresgeville remember how long their village has been without the services of a resident physician? The answer is since Jan. 6, 1939, when Dr. David C. Trach died. Since that time residents have been unable to get a physician to locate here.

Dr. Trach was a native son, born May 9, 1867, in a house in Gilbert now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rousner, the former Lew Stanley.

At the age of 17, he entered the former Fairview Academy in Brodheadsville while teaching school at Middle Creek and then graduated from the Wind Gap to install two lights

WIND GAP — Street lights will be installed in two places, as the result of action taken by Wind Gap Borough Council during a meeting Monday night.

The lights will be installed on East Mechanic St. and East Lehigh Ave.

Council also passed motions reappointing several borough employees.

Robert D. Ronco was reappointed street supervisor and Herman Frey was reappointed his assistant.

Russell H. Kline Sr. was appointed guard and custodian of the garbage disposal dump.

Robert Ambrose, David Mack and Fred Gunser were named as part-time policemen, and John J. Case was employed as custodian at the borough building.

Ellsworth Davies was reappointed to a five-year term on the Wind Gap Municipal Authority.

The Citizens Bank of Wind Gap was designated as the depository for borough funds during 1969.

Polk Twp. adopts budget

KRESGEVILLE — A 1969 operating budget of $84,339 was adopted by Polk Township supervisors at their reorganization meeting Monday night in Kresgeville Elementary School.

Estimated revenue from taxes will be $36,339; from state liquid fuel fund, $23,000; plus a 1968 balance of $16,500 in township fund and $8,500 in state fund.

Taxes remain unchanged at five mills for real estate; five dollars per capita and one per cent earned income tax.

All board members were reappointed: Leonard Stauffer, chairman; Clinton Bruch, vice chairman; Lawrence Getz, secretary-treasurer; Floyd Christman, roadmaster.

Supervisors approved a pay increase for township employees. Roadmaster pay was increased from $2.00 to $2.25 per hour and for roadcrew members, from $1.75 to $1.85 per hour.

Two township auditors were appointed: Lloyd Miller, to replace Roger Arnold, and Katherine Roudner, to replace Elwood Getz.

Lester Brown of Mervine, Brown and Newman, Stroudsburg attorney, was reappointed township solicitor.

The names of 55 persons were placed on the township tax exoneration list since they have all either moved from the township or are deceased; one was listed as unemployed and handicapped.

Supervisors approved payment of $366 to be shared 50 per cent between Townsmen's Volunteer Fire Co. and West End Volunteer Fire Co. The figure represents a two per cent tax levied by the Foreign Fire Insurance toward Firemen's Association funds.

Pen Argyl explains zoning rules

PEN ARGYL — Zoning and zoning procedures were explained during a public hearing and meeting with the Pen Argyl Borough Council Monday night.

The differences between residential and commercial zoning of the eastern end of Pen Argyl borough was explained and residents were told that swimming pools would be allowed on private property.

A question was raised about a mobile home site. The site was chosen because it was the only available area and by law, an area must be provided for this type of home, it was noted.

The garage at the sewer plant has been completed, Woodrow Wilson reported. The project will be completed by November. The sewer lines will be checked by engineers for breakage, to eliminate infiltration.

Dr. Floyd W. Shafer, practiced from 1932 until 1950 at Weir Lake in Gilbert, then moved to Stroudsburg. Other doctors who opened offices included: Elmo J. Lilli, now in Stroudsburg; Anne E. Snyder, now at the General Hospital in East Stroudsburg; C. Brook Weiss, now in Mountainhome; a doctor Christman, now a pathologist in Sunbury; Gilbert Hoffman, internal medicine in Bethlehem; Thomas Williams, psychiatry in Bethlehem; Lewis Reese, radiologist, Washington, Pa.; Jack Garis, in the mid-west and Gerald Konetz in Reading.

Milford mulls controlling junked cars

MILFORD — The Milford Borough Council Monday night considered adoption of an ordinance which would prohibit accumulation of refuse and junk cars on borough properties.

The ordinance, however, would not prohibit the cars on service stations and other garages.

Councilmen will further consider the ordinance before taking any official action.

Councilman Clyde Rowe, who had just completed one full year of his four-year term, submitted his resignation.

Rowe, who operated an antique store, said he will move from the borough. The resignation was not accepted Monday night since Rowe will remain in the borough for another month or so.

The council, meanwhile, will seek a successor to fill Rowe's unexpired term and act on the resignation when Rowe is prepared to move from the borough.

In other action, the borough agreed to install a street light on the corner of Moon Valley Road and Elizabeth Street. Milford Township will pay half the cost.

The council also agreed to pay half the cost for purchase and installation of flashing lights on both sides of Harford Street by the Milford Elementary School. The cost will be $1,000 with the school board paying the other half.

Delay certain in peace talks

What does the appointment of Henry Cabot Lodge as the chief representative to the Paris peace talks do for the cause of peace in Vietnam?

While there is no doubt to the ability of Lodge, it is almost certain to further delay the talks that have been on and off and hit and miss since they began in the French capital.

Lodge is a man of outstanding ability and his appointment by President-elect Richard M. Nixon is virtually certain to draw the delegates of the United States and South Vietnam closer together.

However, what does it do as far as the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong are concerned?

It is our opinion that Lodge's presence at the peace table, regardless of its size and shape, will widen the gap between the foes on the battlefield.

Lodge, who has served Democrats as well as Republicans during his political career, has had close ties with South Vietnam as the ambassador to that nation under both President John F. Kennedy and President Lyndon B. Johnson. As ambassador to South Vietnam he was naturally considered an enemy by the North Vietnamese and their allies.

This feeling is certain to carry over, at least during the early days, at the Paris peace talks.

It also means a certain delay in talks that were showing the very slightest ray of hope in recent meetings. There probably won't be any advancement until Lodge replaces W. Averell Harriman as Uncle Sam's number one delegate in the field of peace.

Delay is a certainty, but Lodge's ability may bring a speed up in future talks. After all, Lodge, a Republican, has carried the ball for Democrats as well as Republicans through the years.

He has impressed both parties and people with whom he has worked. He may very well succeed again.

Better alarm needed

Two large burglaries at the Stroudsburg Post Office in less than a year and the apparent lack of an adequate alarm system are reasons for concern at this time.

The concern becomes even more severe when the vulnerability of post offices on a national scale is understood. An average of 200 post office burglaries occur across the United States each week.

Although the "take" in Sunday morning's burglary at the Stroudsburg Post Office was far below the original estimate, it is quite apparent that the $90,000 figure could easily have been correct if two stubborn safes hadn't thwarted the burglars.

However, it was just as apparent that Stroudsburg's post office is badly in need of an alarm system. The tear gas alarms that are located in each of the vaults worked only partially and undoubtedly did little to hinder the work of the burglars, as only one of six canisters fired.

Since the Stroudsburg Post Office was burglarized twice in less than a year, it is quite obvious that it is becoming a popular target for individuals with a get rich quick attitude.

The building is in need of a "sure fire" burglar alarm, possibly a tie in with the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg Control Center. This quiet type of alarm, which appears to be gaining in popularity, would sound only at the Control Center and police could be dispatched without the suspect even realizing he had tripped an alarm.

It is impossible for police to be able to check all establishments on their rounds on a time schedule that is certain to prevent burglaries.

However, with the "silent alarm," policemen can be dispatched to the trouble spot immediately.

This type of alarm system certainly could solve a major problem.

Four accomplishments

WASHINGTON — The leadership decisions by both the Democrats and Republicans for the new Congress do four things.

1 — They exhibit the political daring with which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is going after the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination — and how it pays off.

2 — They move the Republican Party more to its political center and the Democratic Party moderately to the left.

3 — They give the GOP the best leadership in both the Senate and House to work effectively with President-elect Richard Nixon and co-operatively with the Democratic majority in Congress.

4 — In the Senate, at least, the new leadership choices shook up the congressional establishment and showed Congress responsive to public opinion.

All this doesn't guarantee that Congress will act responsibly and responsibly in the months ahead, but it's a good beginning.

Two moderates

It is significant that the GOP put two moderate Republicans in the top leadership of both houses. The special value of naming Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania as assistant Senate leader is that he not only has credentials with his own party but the trust of the Democratic opposition whose support the Nixon Administration will need on all crucial measures.

The Republicans did about the same in the House, replacing Melvin Laird, who is to be Secretary of Defense, with John B. Anderson of Illinois as chairman of the Party Conference.

But the House Democrats cling with blind fondness to the old establishment and thus Speaker John McCormack lingers on, proclaiming how long he has favored — but never before has acted upon — the great and radical reform of electronic voting. Now, when the seniority-entrenched Democratic committee chairmen deign to allow members of the House to get a bill to vote upon, we'll know the vote is authentic. It'll be right up there on the wall in lights.

When Russell Long of Louisiana saw that his colleagues were ousting him as Democratic Senate whip and putting Teddy Kennedy in his place, he revealingly blurted out the truth: "I think I had him outgummed in the Senate, but he was more popular across the country." That's the truth. That's why Teddy made it — Senate Democrats were responding to public demand and that's a welcome dividend; evidence, perhaps, of things to come.

Congress must complete a whole series of reforms — and how Congress hates to reform itself — before it begins to transact the public business efficiently and effectively. The steps taken at the opening of the new Congress are minute but they are in the right direction.

The most fascinating of all is, of course, the elevation of Sen. Kennedy as second only to Mike Mansfield in the top ranks of leadership. It has a double significance — he daringly took the risk of going for the post of assistant leader and he succeeded.

Self-revealing aspect

It also discloses what to me is the most self-revealing aspect of Teddy's two great political decisions of 1968. He refused to allow his name to be put in nomination for president when the Chicago convention looked as though it might be deadlocked — although the opportunity to do so was temptingly before him. Some suggested that Kennedy turned this aside because it would have meant a fight and that his chances of winning either the nomination or the presidency didn't look good. I think not.

He turned it down for a bigger and a better reason: He didn't want the nomination as a sentimental gift; he wanted to earn it — or not get it.

Now Sen. Kennedy is going about to earn it on his own and it is obvious that he is not going to be coy or timid.

He himself has an important policy decision to make — whether to practice toward the new administration a very responsible bipartisanship in behalf of a troubled nation or to go after Nixon like a fox terrier.

Kennedy, an honorable, intelligent, likable young man, has not yet proved his maturity. Time and responsibility are needed for that. He now has some of that responsibility and four years might be enough.

Doesn't take long

WASHINGTON — It's one thing to write about all the crime here and quite another to see it with your own eyes. On a recent night I was driving through the heart of the downtown Washington shopping section.

As we were held up by traffic, in the middle of the block, three tough-looking men crossed in front of my car and headed for a nearby store. I commented to my wife, seated beside me, "Look. Those three are up to no good. I wouldn't run a store here for any amount of money."

We were still stuck in traffic and able to watch through the store window as the three men walked into the store and, without ado, grabbed some clothes and headed back for the door. A clerk began to scuffle with them as horns blew behind us and we were forced to drive on. Oh, well.

This business of having multiple Inaugural Balls is such an accepted thing now it almost seems as though it's been going on forever. Actually, there was only one Inaugural Ball, generally at a downtown hotel, until Ike's second inauguration, in 1956.

So many people wanted ball tickets that Mrs. George Gordon Moore (Mamie's sister), chairman of the hospitality committee, said, "Well, why can't we have several of them?"

Contribution from readers Berry Chrisbus and Phyllis Davenport: "Roses are red, violets are blue, what do you do for Hong Kong flu?"

People at a recent outdoor White House ceremony wondered why they were shivering in overcoats while members of the Virginia Tech Glee Club seemed comfortable in suit coats only. The secret: The temporary wooden stage contained heat lamps instead of footlights.

In an article in a magazine called "The Evergreen Review," writer Nat Hentoff says thoughtful, rebellious students want more from their schools than degrees which led them to the upper-income brackets. He quotes one "thoughtful student" as saying, "There is more to life than making a living."

Yes. There's always letting someone else make it for you, and/or welfare. I discovered myself that there's more to life than making a living; there's poverty and hunger, too!

If you think the Hong Kong flu is bad, wait until space travelers of the future bring home something called the Martian virus!

A woman landing at Dulles International Airport here, when asked why she'd failed to declare jewelry she'd purchased overseas, said, "Because I already pay enough in taxes!" (Nice try, lady.)

Allen - Goldsmith Report

China nears bomb

WASHINGTON — With its eighth nuclear weapons test, Communist China has vaulted back ahead of France on the grim performance chart of the nuclear club.

A final appraisal of the Chinese test must await detailed analysis of the debris blasted into the atmosphere last month at the Lop Nor testing station. Certain implications already are clear, however, from available information.

In disclosing the blast on December 27, the United States Atomic Energy Commission estimated its yield at three megatons. The AEC announcement said the yield, equivalent to three million tons of TNT, was "about the same as the sixth Chinese test which took place on June 17, 1967."

No mention was made, in the one paragraph AEC statement, of the seventh Chinese explosion in December 1967. That test, which generated a TNT equivalent of less than 20 kilotons, is widely assumed to have been a "dud" — an H-bomb in which only the atomic trigger actually exploded.

With its announced three megaton yield, there is every reason to believe that the recent Chinese blast was a thermonuclear (H-bomb) explosion. That suggests a successful test which puts Peking back on the road to a hydrogen warhead for the missiles it is developing.

U.S. experts believe the Chinese explosion took place, after an air drop, well above ground. That is also the implication of reports from Japan that the blast has produced relatively little radioactive fall-out.

Defend the Franc

In a series of nuclear tests last summer, French scientists detonated their first thermonuclear explosion. The Chinese had done no testing since their reported dud, and there was much satisfaction for France in reaching the H-bomb plateau.

Subsequently, however, in the weeks which saw a speculative attack on the stability of the franc, Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced that the French testing program would be halted as a part of an austerity program designed to protect the currency. So the French are on the sidelines for the present.

As they ponder the long-range implications of the recent Chinese test, U.S. intelligence experts face a couple of tough questions. The first, of course, is the make-up of the Chinese nuclear explosive. Much can be determined, in that regard, from the debris analysis.

The Pennsylvania Story

Budget next week

HARRISBURG — The fact that Pennsylvania taxpayers did not receive their annual "bill" for two billion dollars-plus this week caused anything but consternation among lawmakers gathered here for the opening of the 1969 legislative session.

The "bill" in question of course is the annual budget covering general fund operations submitted each year by the governor for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

It is true Gov. William Scranton had his fiscal tome ready for scrutiny the opening week of the 1964 session, but he lapsed back to Jan. 28 in 1965 and to February the following year.

As for Gov. Shafer, in his first year in office in 1967 he didn't manage to make the budgetary grade until April 11. Last year he did a little better, offering his fiscal volume to lawmakers on February 7.

As for the current spending document, indications are it may be ready by the time lawmakers return to session the week of January 13 following next week's Farm Show recess.

There is no written or unwritten law that says the budget must be ready by any specific time, particularly during the very first week of legislative operations.

Tribute to change

Actually the fact that the state budget oftentimes in recent years has been ready for presentation early in legislative sessions is a tribute of no small proportions to an efficient change that has taken place within the past decade on the budget-preparation front in Pennsylvania.

Unquestionably to the average man on the street or anyone unfamiliar with the intricate and detailed operations of Pennsylvania's huge and gangling state government, the budget situation today indeed appears to be one filled with chaos, confusion and uncertainty.

Actually, this used to be the case but with the mushrooming budgets of recent years — particularly within the past 15 years — the

Anticoagulant treatment

Do all people who have recovered from a heart attack have to continue to take blood-thinning medicine?

A heart attack due to closure of the coronary artery that brings blood and oxygen to the heart muscle depends for recovery on reopening that vessel. Sometimes, with severe arteriosclerosis, slow closure of one of the coronary arteries may occur. At other times a clot may form within the vessel and interfere with the life-bringing blood so necessary for healthy heart action.

Blockage of an artery or vein in other parts of the body, especially the brain, does damage in the same way.

About fifteen years ago, it was discovered that some drugs, known as anticoagulants, were able to prevent or delay the formation of blood

A more difficult question, debated behind-the-scenes by China experts is whether the cultural revolution of Mao Tse-tung has deeply disrupted Peking's drive for a nuclear striking force.

Initially, U.S. experts believed the activities of the Red Guard had set back China's missile program but left its nuclear energy program relatively free from disruptive delays. Reports last summer suggested that the testing program had also been affected.

Early reports of the recent Chinese test do not suggest that delays, if any, have seriously interfered with China's progress in atomic development.

Pentagon implications

The pace of China's nuclear explosives program and its program for producing missile delivery systems are vitally important for U.S. defense planners. The controversial thin anti-ballistic-missile system (ABM), planned by the Pentagon, is designed to protect against a possible missile attack from China in the 1970s.

Opponents have urged delays in deployment of the U.S. ABM system on grounds that China has experienced delays in developing its nuclear striking force. Judging from China's nuclear energy program, the tendency in free world capitals has been to underestimate the capacity of Chinese scientists.

China conducted its first weapons test in October 1961, although Russia had apparently stopped providing assistance to Peking in atomic energy about 1960. By October 1966, the Chinese had conducted four tests.

By contrast, the French tested their first atomic device early in 1960. While French scientists conducted more explosions over the years, they appeared to make less progress towards a full-fledged H-bomb.

A Chinese test in December 1968 — the fifth — indicated that Peking had made major strides towards a thermonuclear explosion, and the June 1967 test confirmed those indications. Debris analysis of these Chinese tests led U.S. experts to believe that the Chinese were making excellent progress in their weapons design.

From their analysis of the recent Chinese test, U.S. experts will now have to decide whether the Chinese will have a deliverable warhead in the mid-1970s, as Pentagon experts have contended, or whether the warhead might be available early in the 1970s, as some congressional weapons experts have predicted.

problem became so thorny that something had to be done.

When Democratic governor Henry Leader picked up the budget books in 1955 he made a spirited effort in this direction his first year, but, the newness of office and the press of circumstances made any appreciable change next to impossible. That year he sent the taxpayer bill to the Legislature in April.

In 1957 the first real start was made on the budget transition front; it wasn't too great but at least it was a start in the direction of cutting down much of the chaos and confusion that heretofore surrounded nearly every state budget. In 1957 Leader whipped his fiscal presentation before the Legislature the first week in February.

In 1959 when Democratic governor David Lawrence took over, his first-fiscal document knocked out even more chaos and confusion on the budgetary front, although in that first year of his four-year tenure he didn't have it in the desired shape until the first week in March. In 1960 the annual legislative session started out, but the fiscal year had been taken care of in the 1959 budget.

In 1961 Lawrence made it by the third week in January and in the 1962 session the monstrosity was not only ready the first week the Legislature convened but the very first day.

The early presentation facet and the more efficient drumlight type of budget run hand in hand. Budgets today are much more realistic, much more factual and much less prone to "manipulation for political convenience" on the deficit and surplus front, as compared with yesteryear.

One reason for this is that legislative responsibility has assumed greater proportions on the budgetary front than ever before; the records are there and open for the legislative branch to pore over and study continually.

The Shafer Administration has fallen into line amazingly well on the "snappy budget" front.

Ann Landers

Cheers for taking stand

Dear Ann Landers: We moved into this home seven months ago. The neighbors were very nice, until the second week in December, when they all began to put up lights, tree decorations, Santas and sleighs, angels, what have you. This block looked like Macy's windows. My wife and I have always placed our Christmas tree in the front window and that was all. We never felt it was necessary to go in for a big display.

On Dec. 18 a neighbor telephoned and asked if we needed help to "put up our Christmas lights." I told her we were not putting up any lights. She said, "Oh, then it's true — you folks aren't Christians." I replied, "I didn't say whether we were Christians or not. All I said was we are not putting up any lights."

The conversation didn't get any better and I finally hung up. Now my wife says I should not have a doubt in the neighbor's mind as to whether or not we are Christians (we go to the Presbyterian Church). I say it's none of her business. Who is right, Ann, my wife or me?

GROSSE POINTE

Dear G.P.: You are. And a holly wreath to you, Bub, for not allowing your neighbor to put you on the defensive.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a bachelor who was keeping company with a middle-aged widow. Mary had this cat that I never cared for. Whenever I went to call, Jasper seemed to be watching every move I made. I was always uncomfortable around him.

Last week Jasper was sitting in the middle of the driveway when I came to call. I sounded the horn but he just sat there. I got mad because he was being stubborn so I ran over him.

Mary came out of the house at that moment. When she saw Jasper she became hysterical. It was plain that the cat was dead, but she insisted we take him to the vet's anyway. When I refused she told me to leave and never to come back.

I was very fond of Mary but if she would trade our relationship for a cat maybe she was too nutty to make a good wife. What do you say?

ANCHORAGE

Dear Ann: I say you sound like a sadistic kook and she is lucky to be rid of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 13-year-old girl with a 38-year-old problem. My mother. Whenever I am invited to spend the night at a girl's house, she has to know the name, address and phone number of the girl. I don't mind this, but I DO mind when she calls the mother of the girl and gives her the third degree. This makes me look like a baby and I hate it. It also looks like my mother doesn't trust me.

Say something so my mother will cut it out.

NO INFANT

Dear N: What you consider the third degree is really a healthy interest in you. When a 13-year-old girl plans to spend the night away from home, her mother should speak to the friend's mother and make certain that at least one parent will be at home. I applaud her good judgment. And you should, too.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Let's say you're declarer at four spades and West leads the king of diamonds. The best way to play the hand is not exactly obvious, but it is clear that if the spades and hearts are both divided 3-2, you will have no trouble making the contract by establishing dummy's hearts.

So what you do is assume that either or both suits are divided 4-1, and go on from there. There is no use worrying about a 5-0 break in either suit because the contract would almost surely go down in that case.

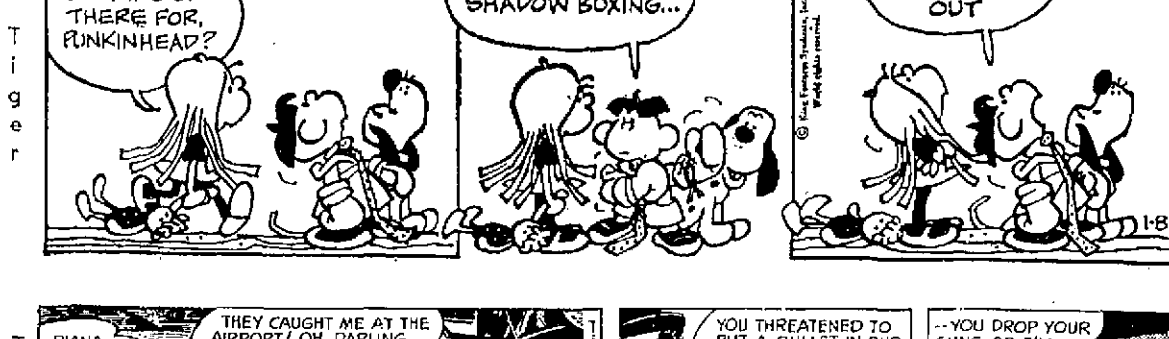

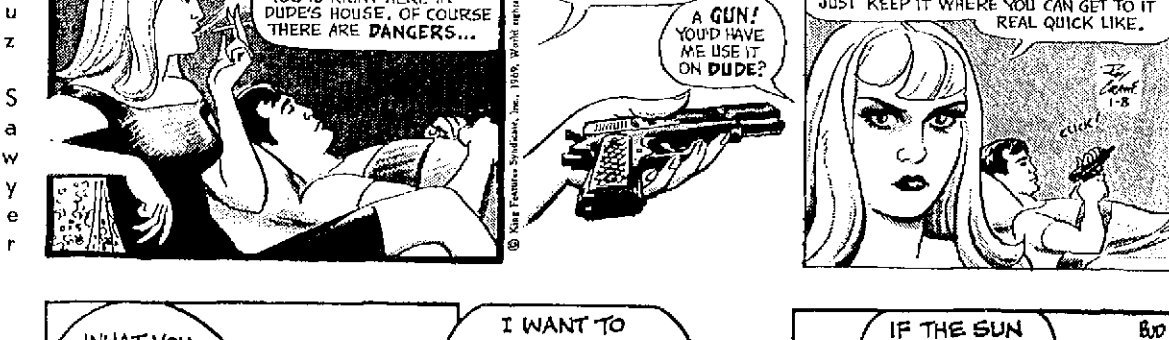

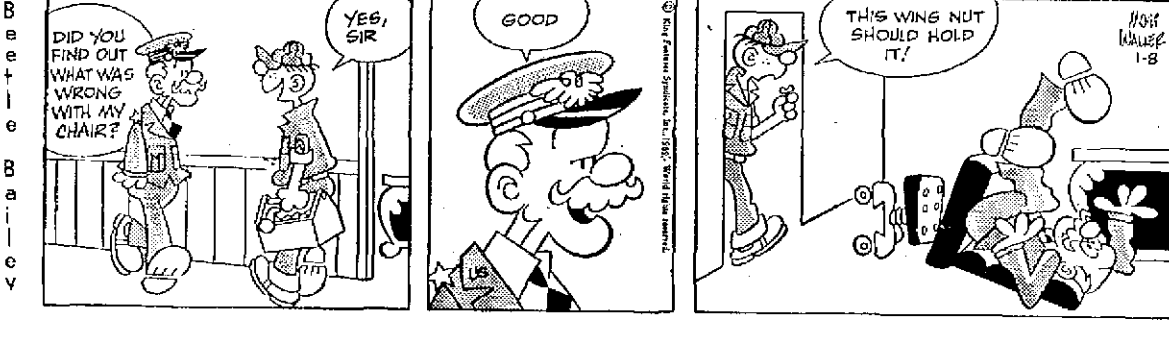

Probably the best way to start is to win the ace of diamonds and cash the A-Q of spades. With both opponents following suit, half the battle is won, but you can't afford to relax just yet. There is still the danger of a 4-1 heart division to be dealt with.

Thus, in the actual hand, suppose you drew a third round of trumps and cashed the A-K of hearts. With East showing out, you would find the contract unmanageable and would wind up going down two against proper defense.

Instead, you should stop drawing trumps after two rounds and cash the ace of hearts. When East-West both follow suit, you continue with a low heart from dummy — in this way guaranteeing the contract 100 per cent.

West wins with the nine but cannot prevent you from later establishing the hearts and returning to dummy with a trump to cash them. The only tricks you lose are a heart, a diamond and a club.

It is true that if the hearts were divided 3-2 the recommended method of play would cost a trick unnecessarily, but it is an unimportant 30-point loss which you should willingly incur to assure the contract.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

It's always refreshing to see how the other half lives and a weekend in New York with the fashion designers is certainly one way to do it. This year there was added drama in the fact that the Nixon press headquarters were located on the same floor as the Couture Designer showings in the Pierre.

As a matter of fact they had taken over our old press room so that our typewriters had been placed in a foyer where the press covering Nixon could watch the press covering fashions doing their thing.

When President-elect Nixon flew in for post-holiday appointments the interactivity grew even more hectic. At one point, in the middle of a showing, Mildred Sullivan asked that our doors be closed because all this trotting back and forth was making the Secret Service men jittery.

I must say we were a motley crew, but scarcely dangerous. However, while those hard-working souls who were on time were being confined, one blithe young laggard arrived just as the press conference was announced and trailed in with the rest. Her press credentials were examined and she was allowed to stay.

All excited with her scoop, she rushed for a phone as soon as the conference ended to call her city editor in the mid-West. "I've just covered a Nixon press conference," she reported excitedly. "Do you want a special report on it?"

"Is there a local Angle?" he asked uncomprehendingly. Anyway it was a deflated reporter who rejoined us where, out of durance, we were gawking over the heads of the television crew to watch Nixon's departure — when suddenly they turned the cameras on us. However, I think we ended up on the cutting room floor because we didn't make the news telecasts — at least not on our color set.

However, the presence of the Nixon entourage did add excitement to life in the hotel. The elevators didn't stop at the 37th floor or the 38th floor where the principal offices were. Mysteriously on the 12th floor, right next to my room, there was a desk in the hallway staffed night and day by a young man who when questioned would only say "We're on Nixon's staff."

Certainly gave one a feeling of security—and they proved very helpful when the door stuck. However, it was so cold, damp and windy in New York that I felt pretty secure anyway. No self-respecting mugger would be out in weather that frost-bit my ears on a four block walk to the St. Regis for a midnight reception on the roof.

Pants suits for women big fashion story

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

NEW YORK — Unisex isn't as serious as all the furor about pants suits for women would lead one to suspect. The population explosion continues. Men, borrowing ruffles from the ladies, can look as masculine as a riverboat gambler in them. Women can look appealingly feminine in the pants they borrowed from the men.

Certainly the pants suit is one of the bigger stories from the New York Couture group showings for the fashion press in New York.

Not everybody will wear pants, but from the variety shown by the various designers almost everybody could.

The trick that saves the day for the women fighting the battle of the bulge is that many pants are shown with long tunics camouflaging critical areas.

As a matter of fact many of the tunics can be worn as dresses, independently. This solves the problem for socialites who still are not permitted in some restaurants if they are wearing pants. They can simply take them off.

More practically, in the Poconos, that combination would mean that women who might find pants comfortable for the Spring breezes could discard them when the really warm weather arrived without discarding the whole outfit.

While the pants suit seemed important in most collections, there were a few hold-outs.

Vincent Monte Sano, president of the Couture Group, has no pants suits and no see-through dresses in his collection. "They're just not things that the women who pay the prices for our clothes would buy," he said.

Ron Amey for Burke-Amey, who presented another of his stunning collections, doesn't believe in pants at his price range either. "A woman should never spend any more than $100 on them, and then only buy them from a house that specializes in pants."

However, they are exceptions in a fashion world which has succumbed to the pants look all along the line.

There are pants shoes and pants hose and pants handbags — and one whole section of the millinery show was devoted to hats designed to be worn with pants.

If you are panting after pants, they come in all types from the strictly tailored Beau Brummell to the soft siren look of the harem pants.

One further fashion note about pants — in wind-blown New York's bitter chill, fashion editors who wore them were the envy of their shivering co-workers.

Dengler reelected chairman of port authority 21st time

MOUNT POCONO — R. Letoy Dengler Tuesday night was re-elected chairman of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority.

The appointment marks the 21st year for the Mount Pocono resort owner as chairman of the authority which was formed in 1949.

All other offices were reappointed during a reorganization meeting at the Pocono Mountain Airport.

They are Chester Sebring, vice chairman; Lewis DePaul, secretary, and Rodger Miller, treasurer, for the 21st straight year.

Authority members discussed problems at the airport with Eugene Locke, fixed base operator.

Locke told members that some money would have to be invested in the T-hangar.

"The foundation is heaving to such an extent that some of the doors will not be able to be opened until Spring," Locke said.

"This is serious. You're in a critical situation," Locke said. "I have never seen heaving like this."

Authority members were told that there are eight T-hangars with eight aircraft that would probably not be able to be taken out until May. The only way is to literally remove the entire door, which takes up to four hours and that forcing the doorways would just create more problems.

Locke said "There is only one solution and that's plastic overhead doors."

The solution to the hangar-doorways was referred to Sebring and the property committee for "immediate attention." Sebring will get a cost estimate and a special meeting will be scheduled.

Locke commended authority members on their efforts to procure property and project long range plans but recommended that the authority start looking into more short range plans, especially beautification and income opportunities, specifically a luncheon-type restaurant.

Locke told the Authority of the lack of transportation from Mount Pocono to other points of interest.

"Avis Rental has moved from Mt. Pocono and taxi fares are increasing. There should be more effort put into offering convenience to incoming aircraft," Locke suggested.

The Authority will notify Walter Hoffman, owner of Pocono Airlines, to have the airline sign removed from the entrance of the airport on Route 611.

A bid of $10,574 or $145 per acre was awarded to Pocono Paving Materials Inc. of Stroudsburg for the removal of trees and brush from 29.2 acres of airport property.

Two other bids submitted were from Belmont Contractors Inc., Pottstown, for $13,970 and from Barber Tree Experts of Doylestown for $12,269.

Locke announced that he has appointed Kenneth Bell as manager of the airport and explained that the demands of the airport operation warrants the appointment.

County planners urge reliance on local money, not U.S. grants

STROUDSBURG — The word priority, priority of local funds for county planning, took precedence over a proposed investigation of federal funds for county planning during the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission's meeting Tuesday in Stroudsburg.

Two planners, John C. Mills and Amzi Altomose, both of Brodheadsville, argued for the use of county funds now, and then an investigation into the methods of a new approach to acquiring federal funds for the county.

Re-elected planning chairman C. Marshall Reese of Buck Hill Falls concurred with Mills and Altomose when he said that even though the county is slated top priority for federal funds, the county has been waiting nearly two years, 22 months for federal funds.

"We just cannot base a planning program on federal funds until they are received," Reese said.

Cooperation In describing the function of the planners, Reese stated that the planning commission's duty is one of organization and cooperation with borough and township planners.

"Planning is organization, administration, cooperation of citizens and agencies in the county," he said.

In citing another near hopeless instance of the county obtaining federal funds, Reese cited the difficulties of former commission's director, Leonard Ziolkowski, when Ziolkowski, after numerous contacts with state and federal groups, still had to wait for the arrival of federal funds.

"And, we are still waiting," Reese said. "A program based on an indefinite source of funds cannot help but to fail." We cannot afford to ignore the impact of Tocks Island. If we have to use local funds, we have to use them."

Planner William D. McFadden, social science professor at East Stroudsburg State College, urged in the form of a motion that the planners investigate how other counties approach the acquisition of federal funds.

Mills, opposed to the motion, said that such an investigation would "overload" newly hired planning administrator Douglas Williams' duties.

McFadden said that the first point of the planner's 1969 order of business should be an answer to the question: "What is our relationship between federal and state funding?"

Mills shot back it was "22 months" of waiting.

"The federal government has a duty towards the county," McFadden said.

Citing the priority list of problems in the county, Reese said it had to be local funds now, federal funds later.

McFadden said the county has a responsibility to investigate (its) relationship with the federal government.

He again made a motion to direct Williams to investigate 701 and other federal findings and to try a new approach in asking other counties in the state how and what methods they used in receiving federal funds.

Altomose, although agreeing in part with McFadden's motion, said that the first priority should go to the expenditure of local funds.

Reese suggested a committee of two, himself and McFadden, to investigate avenues of approach to federal funds.

Robert Pinder, chairman of the Stroudsburg planners, and the borough's consulting planner, Michael Cabot, presented the redevelopment plan for the Stofferlet St area in Stroudsburg to the county planners.

Priority The redevelopment plan calls for Stroudsburg's Stofferlet St. area and its First Ward to be redeveloped, with the Stofferlet St. receiving top priority.

Pinder will ask Stroudsburg planners for their approval of the redevelopment plan at tonight's borough planning meeting. All agencies involved must approve the plan before redevelopment can begin.

Cabot said that 16 families in Stofferlet St. area will be rehoused in public and private housing to make way for 80 housing units. Area redevelopment will consist of low cost housing units for First Ward families and also housing for the elderly.

Reese said that any action by the county planners will have to wait until Stroudsburg acts on the redevelopment plan.

Recognizing five visitors at the meeting, Reese answered a number of questions which involved the controversy of hiring Williams as a non professional planning administrator.

Reese first read off a list of questions and answered them one by one before recognizing the visitors for questions.

Ralph Smith, East Stroudsburg State College professor, asked Reese why can't a "qualified planner also work outside of federal funds?" Why support a non-qualified planner?

Reese answered that the planners had hired Williams and that they would stick by their decision.

East Stroudsburg council urges emergency police use

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Borough Council Tuesday night discussed the possibility of entering an agreement with Stroudsburg and Stroud Township which would increase police protection in event of an emergency for all three municipalities.

The agreement is simply that in the event of an emergency which would call for increased police protection, any one of the three municipalities could "borrow" policemen from the other two.

East Stroudsburg Mayor Thomas Kistler reported to council that a question of insurance coverage had arisen in the discussion of the feasibility of such an arrangement.

Council members questioned whether the present insurance coverage of the East Stroudsburg police force and borough would cover police officers of other communities who come into the borough to offer aid.

Mayor Kistler reported that in Stroudsburg's situation, all Stroudsburg policemen are covered by Stroudsburg insurance regardless of where the officers are working so long as the officers are on the payroll. Solicitor Edwin Krawitz suggested the inclusion in the insurance policy of the type of coverage which would protect the policemen and the borough in the event of a possible negligent act.

Council's police committee will look into the present insurance coverage and report back to council.

Council adopted a motion which will establish the retainer of the solicitor at $1,000 per year.

In other action, council voted to provide four additional street lights for residents on Greendale Drive in the borough.

Approval was given by council to Middle Atlantic States Engineering, the borough's consulting engineering firm, to proceed with certain changes at the filter plant which will help to solve the cloudy water problems which have been existent in certain areas of the borough.

Council member Jack Wallie suggested that council look into the possibility of providing a well rounded training program for borough police officers. The police committee will study the suggestion.

County's insurance plan ready

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners are expected to meet Thursday with representatives of the insurance committee which was appointed by the commissioners to make recommendations concerning an insurance program for the county.

The committee is composed of representatives of the E.A. Bell, Heberling, Joseph Small, and G. Willard Stettler agencies, all of Stroudsburg; the Crowe agency, East Stroudsburg and the Donald Robbins agency, Tannersville.

The committee has reviewed the present policy held by the county and has made some recommendations to the commissioners concerning the present policy.

Among the recommendations was that the county's insurance package should be put out for bids prior to the next installment date.

The committee feels that by doing this, the county will benefit by standard coverage as provided in one set of specifications at the lowest possible premiums.

Another recommendation was that the bidding be limited to licensed resident agents of Monroe County.

Also recommended to the commissioners was the formation of a smaller committee to prepare specifications for the bidding.

It was suggested that this committee should have the support and cooperation of the commissioners, or the commissioners should appoint a person to work with the committee.

After six general committee meetings and three subcommittee meetings, the insurance committee submitted to the commissioners detailed recommendations concerning actual coverage of county property and documents and liability.

Speeding arrests top 1968 report

EAST STROUDSBURG — During 1968, 124 persons were arrested in East Stroudsburg for speeding, according to the final police report submitted by Mayor Thomas Kistler to the borough council Tuesday night.

The number of speeding violations far outdistanced any of the other categories of persons arrested for motor vehicle violations during the year. A total of 331 persons were arrested for 29 types of violations.

Running stop signs and red lights, with totals of 54 and 29 respectively, were the second and third greatest violations.

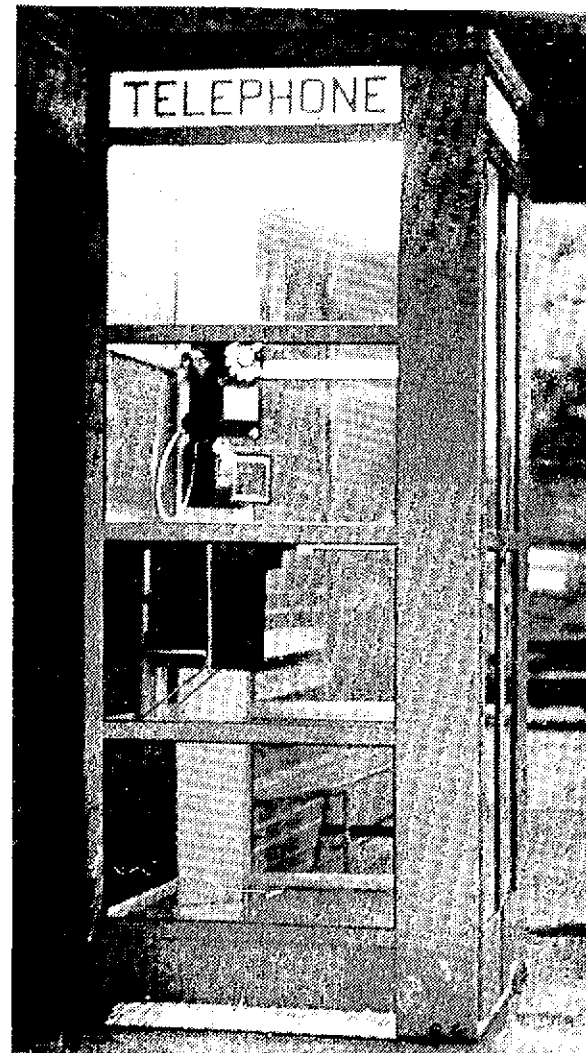

Borough police arrested 163 persons for 15 different penal violations which ranged from disorderly conduct to dogs at large.

Of the penal violations, the most prevalent was disorderly conduct which accounted for 78 arrests. In second place was drunk and disorderly conduct.

Revenue statistics from the police department show that penal and motor violations accounted for a total of $5,415; state violations, $1,244; fifty cent fines, $1,964; one dollar fines, $2,750; and meters, $9,344.

Other figures released through the report show that 136 accidents involving more than $100 of damage occurred in the borough and only 85 accidents occurred under $100 in damages.

During their patrolling by automobile, the police department traveled 38,203 miles.

All three buildings were searched by police and no evidence of a bomb was found.

Examinations were scheduled for 2 p.m. in the Zimbar Gym. Approximately 300 students taking the examinations were moved to the Koehler Fieldhouse and the tests held.

Leading 38-27 at intermission, Bath hit three straight layups at the start of the third period and Pen Argyl quickly increased its lead to 46-31.

But then Matt Hood, who tallied 14 of his 31 points in the third period, got hot and his three straight field goals closed the gap to 46-37 with 4:20 left.

With 40 seconds left in the period a Hood jumper cut the gap to 51-46.

But in the final period sophomore Dwight Repsher scored seven points as the Knights never let the Cavs get closer than four points.

Kaufman fouled out with 1:45 left but the remainder of the game saw the teams exchange foul shots.

Pen Argyl hit on 25 of 50 shots from the floor as compared to 23 of 61 for the Cavs.

Bath and Kaufman led the winners with 23 and 21 points respectively. Kishbaugh added 13 for the losers. Jim Waller, the Cavs standing court performer, was limited to seven points.

Nick Ulls' 23 points led the East Stroudsburg reserves to a 54-37 decision in the first game.

Cardinalettes
even record

CRISCO — The Pocono Mountain girls basketball team evened its seasonal record at 1-1 Tuesday with a 47-29 win over Pocono Central Catholic.

Both Jean Wayne of the winners and the losers' Mary Beth DeMars scored 16 points.

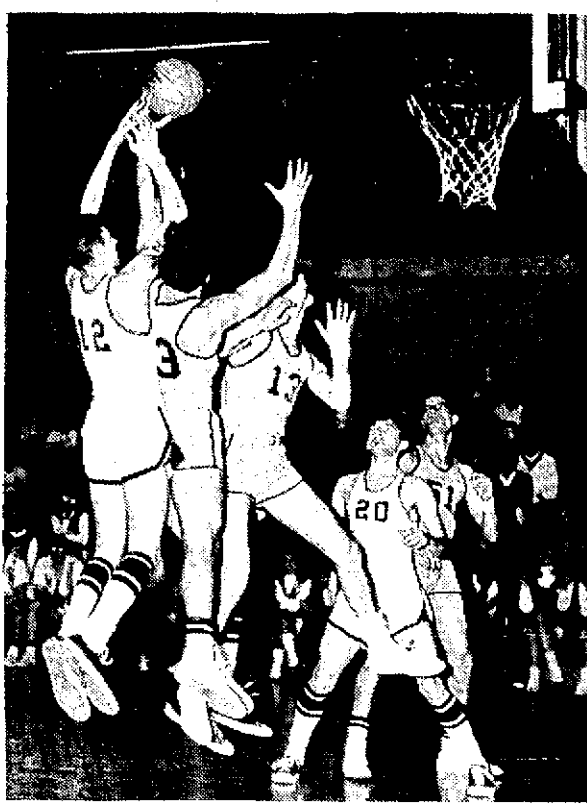

The Cardinalettes open defense of their Lehigh-Northampton League title Friday against Nazareth.

Allie Colombokilled;
trainer for Marciano

BOSTON (UPI)—Allie Colombo, longtime friend and trainer of Rocky Marciano, who helped the "Brooklyn Blockbuster" through his undefeated heavyweight career, was killed late Monday night when crushed by a tractor trailer, police reported Tuesday.

Colombo, 49, was crushed by the truck as it backed up to unload groceries at a supermarket parking lot in the Readville section of Boston. He was employed by the supermarket chain which owned the truck and was working at the scene. He was dead on arrival at city hospital.

Marciano and Colombo were boyhood pals in Brockton, about 35 miles south of Boston. Marciano, who fought a little bit while in the service, began his pro career in 1947 — with Colombo as his trainer. He was trained through his pro career by Charley Goldman.

Pocono Mountain
drops L-N opener

COOPERSBURG — Arnie Kloss and Brian Jones accounted for 50 points Tuesday night in pacing Southern Lehigh to an 85-46 win over Pocono Mountain. The game marked the opening of play in the Lehigh-Northampton League's Southern Division.

In another game, North-western crushed Salisbury, 81-56. The Pleasant Valley at Palisades game was postponed until tonight because of heating trouble.

The Cardinals, now 2-7, had one of their worst nights of the season from the floor as they made only 21 of 75 spots. On the foul line they made only four of 15.

Kloss was the big gun for the Spartans with 26 points, 15 of them in the final period when Solehi outscored the Cardinals 37-10. Jones followed with 24 and Roy Shaffer added 13.

Three Cardinals were in double figures with Ed Horn showing the way with 13. Jack Hunter had 12 and Don Cramer 11.

Southern Lehigh made it a clean sweep with a 66-38 win in the junior varsity action.

Colombo, realizing the muscular Marciano was a potential ring great, wrote promoter Al Weil and then hitchhiked to New York so Weil and Goldman could inspect the young slugger.

Marciano, with Colombo in his corner, built an impressive list of victories, mostly in Providence, R.I., during the next two years. He knocked out his first 10 opponents and 19 of his first 20 and in 1951 Marciano knocked out an aging Joe Louis.

He whipped Jersey Joe Walcott in 1952 to capture the heavyweight championship and retired April 27, 1956 — unbeaten after 49 fights.

Colombo left his widow, two daughters, his parents and three brothers. A solemn high requiem mass will be sung Friday at 9 a.m. in our Lady of Lourdes church in Brockton with burial in Melrose Cemetery Brockton.

STROUDSBURG—A 23 for 32 performance from the foul line carried Stroudsburg to an 83-77 win over Whitehall in the Lehigh Valley League Tuesday night. Both teams are now 1-1 in league action.

In other games Northampton defeated Catasauqua 88-69; Ermaus routed Palmerston 89-63 and Slatington dumped Lehigh 79-63.

The Mounties, now 6-4, for the season, used a well balanced attack and a full-court press to offset a one-man performance by the losers' John Leiner. Leiner finished with 35 points, 18 in the final period.

Stroudsburg's two tallest starters, Mel Abel and Scott Young both picked up four fouls in the first half but outside shooting by Bill Weber and John Marvin kept the Mounties in the game in the first half.

Whitehall had a three-point lead, 42-39, at intermission before the host five went into its press. In the third period S-burg outscored the visitors, 23-11 and near the end of the period enjoyed an 11-point lead.

The Zephyrs then took control of the game at the start of the fourth period as they drove for layups, dominated the boards and forced Stroudsburg to miss some easy shots.

With his team leading by only 67-63, Abel re-entered the game and personally ended the comeback try of Whitehall. The 6-3 junior took control of both boards and contributed a layup and 6 of 6 from the foul line.

He finished the game with 19 out of 10 from the 15-foot stripe.

Marvin and Weber each finished with 23 points while Dale Marsh added 11 and Abel 10. Al Koglovits, with 11, and Gary Ehrig, with 10, were also in double figures for the loser.

Leiner now has 63 points in two league games while Martin has 50.

The Stroudsburg junior varsity upped its record to 8-2 with an easy 79-56 win in the preliminary action. Craig Potcher led all scorers with 32 while Dave Cook added 17.

But in the third period Pius hit its cold spell as Nativity outscored the host five, 17-6.

Dave Stepcosky and Doug Schoffstall led the winners (3-6) with 15 and 14 points respectively. Joe Saveni had 15 and Charles Merolla 10 for the losers.

117-114

DETROIT (UPI) — Howard Komives hit 22 points and five of his teammates scored 16 or better Tuesday night as the Detroit Pistons broke in the last quarter for a 117-114 National Basketball Association win.

Detroit carried a 10-point lead into the final two minutes and 25 seconds of play, but Philadelphia roared back with an all-court press to cut the margin to one point, 115-114, before Dave Bing hit a 10-foot jump shot to ice the contest for Detroit.

Detroit, which stopped a hot 76er team which had previously won 11 of its last 15 games, built up a 12-point lead in the third quarter but Philadelphia scored 11 straight points to tie the game 80-80. It was only the fifth win for the Pistons in 18 games under coach Paul Seymour.

The Pistons hit more than 48 per cent of their shots from the floor. But Philadelphia's pressing tactics kept them in the game as Detroit committed 28 bad passes and violations.

Billy Cunningham led the 76er scoring with 25 points while Archie Clark added 21. Hap Hairston totaled 19 points and Walt Bellamy and Jimmy Walker added 18 for the Pistons.

Six technicals were called on the Bullets, three in the second quarter, with two players, the assistant coach and the trainer ejected from the game.

Los Angeles got 23 points from Mel Counts. Earl Monroe led Baltimore with 22.

The Lakers opened a 22-18 first period lead and gained a 48-38 halftime advantage. Midway through the third period the Bullets rallied, but fell back to trail 72-67 after three quarters and could not recoup.

Bullet forward Jack Marin and assistant coach Bob Ferry were ejected for verbal abuse en route to the locker room after the first half by referee Earl Strom. Skip Feldman, the team trainer, was ejected midway through the second period and guard Kevin Loughery was tossed out with three minutes left in the game. The East Stroudsburg State basketball opens "hell week" tonight against Kutztown, a team the Warriors howed 66-63 in the battle for fifth place in the Pocono Classic.

Coach Ken Sisson has put that label on this week because of the fact his Warriors must divide their attention between two games, they host West Chester Friday night, and mid-season examinations.

It will be interesting to see if Sisson sticks with his rocking chair offense that has sophomore Tom Finan starting in the backcourt and running the slowed-down attack. RSSC was 1-1 while using this style of play in the Classic.

One of the outstanding scholastic wrestling matches of the season is scheduled for Thursday night in the Stroudsburg gym when the Mounties host Northampton in the battle for first place in the Lehigh Valley League.

A win is almost a must for Jim Purdy's squad if it hopes to take top honors for the third straight year.

Tony Romano came right to the point when we asked him what happened to his S-burg five in the second half Friday night at Catasauqua.

"A lot of people would say we got beat by Catty's fast break. But I call it dumb basketball," Romano said. Romano was referring to the some 20 easy points the Rough Riders picked up on full-court passes in the second half. The Catasauqua boy in the front of the 1-3-1 zone would break down court as soon as the Mounties put up a shot and no one was dropping back.

Despite the defeat, the play of senior John Marvin had to be a promising sign. Marvin, the leading scorer in the pre-season games, broke a toe prior to the opening game with Pen Argyl, and has apparently just gotten back in shape.

There's a new face on the Pocono Mountain wrestling team and going into Thursday's night match at Salisbury he's the only boy with a perfect record.

We're, of course, referring to senior Pete Wash, a 112-pounder, who moved to this area from Minnesota.

Although his East Stroudsburg High swimming team has yet to win (the Cavaliers host powerful Easton this afternoon), coach Don Rich feels his squad has chance to pick up a couple of wins in the next couple of weeks.

Eastburg has a trio of tough seniors in Dan Wilkins, Rich Davies and Wayne Dippie and several outstanding sophomores and juniors.

Kirby Krick, East Stroudsburg High track coach, is busy trying to get permission for a night track meet involving Stroudsburg, Pocono Mountain and his Cavaliers.

The track program is one of the forgotten sports because its run after school and thus doesn't attract many fans.

But a night meet, several schools in the lower end of the valley have gone under the lights with success, would give the local fans a chance to watch this individual sport.

and is a member of the Varsity D Club.

Pair almost come to blows

Michaels finds Namath gentleman

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Joe Namath, lover, fighter and all-star, laughed off a near-violent after-dark episode which could have made Sunday's Super Bowl game an anti-climactic second feature.

"It was all in good clean fun," said Namath, referring to a near explosion which occurred between him and Baltimore's place-kicking ace, Lou Michaels, in a local restaurant last Sunday night. When it was all over, the New York Jets' quarterback and the Colts' kicker parted "the best of friends."

Both the Jets and Colts are quartered here and Namath and Michaels, whose brother, Walt, is a defensive backfield coach for the Jets, met for the first time by chance in a restaurant while eating dinner Sunday.

According to Michaels, he said hello to Namath upon recognizing him and "the first thing he said back to me was how the Jets were going to kick out of our team."

From then on, the conversation went something like this: Michaels: "Haven't you heard of the word modesty, Joseph?" Namath: "We're going to beat you, and I'm going to pick you apart."

Michaels: "If you do, Joseph, I believe you are the man who could do it. But it's kind of hard throwing out of a well and finding receivers."

Namath: "Don't worry about that. My blockers will give me time."

Michaels: "I never heard Johnny Unitas or Bobby Layne talk that way."

Namath: "I believe that."

Michaels: "If we get in trouble we'll send in the master (Unitas)."

Namath: "I hope you do because that would mean the game is too far gone."

The conversation between the two became a little more animated from that point on and the first thing anybody knew, the towering 250-pound Michaels made the usual all-American offer to the slighter 195-pound Namath: "Why don't you step outside?"

Dan Sullivan, one of Michaels' teammates, calmed him down and all further talk of a fistfight ended.

As the evening wore on, Michaels reversed his field completely about Namath. He began to think the Jet quarterback was a pretty good guy, as a matter of fact. "When everything was said and done, I was ready to take back the things I said when we first met," said Michaels. "If you meet Namath, it's better to hear him out first. He strikes you as being cocky but I went away thinking he's a real gentleman. There's a lot of good under this guy."

Michaels said the only reason he had shown any resentment toward Namath to begin with was because Namath had said the Jets were going to "whip us" and "kick the ---- out of us

as well."

Joe Namath, lover, fighter, all-star. He pulled out a roll that would, as the saying goes, choke a healthy horse, and Michaels didn't count it but he estimates it must have been at least $2,000, from which Namath peeled off a $100 bill to pay the entire check.

"I don't know what he tips. I didn't see that," said Michaels, "but I know now that he's a gentleman and not the kind of guy you figure him out to be at first."

Holovak fired by Patriots

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Patriots said Tuesday they had fired Mike Holovak as head coach and general manager. It was the second time Billy Sullivan, the club's president, had taken part in a dismissal of Holovak.

The action came at a secret meeting of the AFL team's directors at the Algonquin Club. Even at 11 a.m. Tuesday, club officials were insisting that seven directors, a quorum of the 13-member board, had not been able to assemble.

A Patriots' announcement said news of the firing was withheld at Sullivan's request until Sullivan could fly to Mobile, Ala., where Holovak was scouting players in the Senior Bowl, to give the word in person.

Holovak, 7-20 1/2 over the last two seasons and 4-10 in the season just ended, was fired as head coach at Boston College eight years ago by a group of Eagle alumni headed by Sullivan, who later hired Holovak as director of player personnel for the Patriots.

The announcement said Holovak would be offered "another position within the organization, the nature of which will be determined in the near future."

Speculation on that new role centered on a title of director of player personnel, a position held for the past year by former linebacker Rommie Lound and previously held by Ed McKeever, Holovak's predecessor as general manager, currently listed as a scout.

Holovak and Sullivan flew to Miami, where, according to the club announcement, Sullivan was to "ask the advice of knowledgeable men in both leagues" on a new coach at a meeting of the Pro Football Realignment Committee.

Think own is still best

Baltimore fairly impressed with Jet defense

BOCA RATON (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts are fairly impressed with the defense of the New York Jets, but Coach Don Shula said Tuesday his own defensive team is still the best around.

"I have never seen a better defensive team than this one," Shula said when he was asked to rate the Colts.

Shula also said he viewed the National Football League champion Colts' game with the American League champion Jets in the Orange Bowl on Sunday as a significant measure of the difference between the two leagues. Baltimore is favored to win by three touchdowns.

"We only played one or two pre season games with the other league and then this game," Shula said. "I think this one has a lot of bearing in judging the relative strength of the two leagues."

In the first two Super Bowl games, Green Bay knocked off Kansas City and Oakland of the AFL with little difficulty.

Shula compared the New York defense to the defenses of Oakland and Kansas City and said one difficulty of preparing for the Super Bowl is the lack of experience in handling such a defense.

"We're impressed by their defensive line and their linebackers. They are well coordinated and they work well together... they do some things we don't see much of in our league, like shifting to the strong side and stacking their linebackers."

"The New York front four is pretty much like Green Bay's front four in that they have good agility and quickness," said Shula. The Baltimore coach said he had always rated the Jets as a strong team offensively, "and this year their defense came along and that's why they're where they are."

Offensively, Shula said, "the Jets are very much like us — they drop back passing team that uses a lot of the same draws we use. But I don't think they have done as much running this year as we have."

"Their defense is sound. We have our thoughts on solving it but we don't know some things, for instance, how much they will change it. We'll just have to wait and see."

"We're also trying to figure how they are going to play against John Mackey, what they will do to try and stop him."

Morrill said that Baltimore's answer to the Jets will basically be "doing the same things we have done best all season. If they stop us from doing it these things, we'll just have to find something else... I'll just be trying to get the ball to Mackey."

Mackey is the Colts' 6-foot-2, 225-pound tight end.

Shula worked his team Tuesday in pads and on both offense and defense. He said he expected both defensive captain Lenny Lyles and defensive linebacker Babba Smith to be sufficiently recovered from sickness and injury to play.

Banks up prime rate

MARKET (UPI)—The stock market was dealt another punishing blow Tuesday as several major banks upped their prime rate from 6 1/2 per cent, marking the third such move in less than two months. Trading was heavy.

Possibility of tight money has been of particular concern to Wall Street lately, and there is now fear that the prime rate boost may touch off increases in interest rates with a more direct effect on the public, such as those on home mortgages, consumer loans. The prime rate is charged to a bank's most credit-worthy customers.

Other bearish influences, which kept much of the list in retreat all the outset, included the uncertainties surrounding the objectives of the incoming Nixon administration, the tense situation between the Arab states and Israel, and the foot dragging on the Vietnam peace issue. Many analysts believe that the market may have difficulty in registering any sustained recovery in the immediate future, particularly since no one in the banking fraternity is ruling out a further rise in the prime rate.

Newton Zinder, analyst for E. F. Hutton, said the market suffered some technical damage which will take time to repair even though it is currently in an oversold position.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, dropped 1.75 per cent on 1,595 issues crossing the tape. Dealers held a commanding 1,235 to 223 3/4 over advances. There were 47 new lows and four new highs.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks dropped 10.91 to 925.72. DJ rails and utilities also retreated.

Turnover amounted to 15,740,000 shares, up sharply from the 12,720,000 shares which changed hands in the previous session. Of the 15 most active issues, 12 declined, one advanced and one finished unchanged.

Institutional trading picked up considerably, with 66 blocks of 10,000 shares and over changing hands. There were 45 in the previous session.

Benequet topped the list of actives, losing 1/4 to 15 1/4 on 177,100 shares, including two blocks of 28,800 shares at 14 1/4 and 18,000 shares at 14 1/4.

Commonwealth Oil and Gas Aiden tied for second place on 163,100 shares each. Most of Commonwealth's turnover was accounted for by blocks of 110,000 shares, traded at 26 1/4 in a part cross transaction, and 20,000 shares, traded at 26 1/4. The issue closed at 26 1/4 down 1/4. Glen Alden eased 3/8 to 18 1/4.

Third most active issue was Deere & Co., which fell 1/2 to 54 1/4 on 159,800 shares, including a 151,400-share block traded at 53 in a cross transaction.

Elsewhere in the oils Sinclair fell 3/4, Pennzoil 3/8, Standard of California 1/4, Getty 1/4 and Phillips 1/4. Occidental, a heavily traded issue, dipped 1/4.

Avnet, the lone winner among the actives, was up 2 1/4. The firm is said to be exploring a possible merger.

Airlines occupied three spots on the actives, with American and Pan Am running sixth and seventh respectively. The former gave up 1/2, while Pan Am lost 1/2. Eastern, eleventh on the list, held unchanged.

In the steels, Armco dropped 1/4, Republic 1/4 and Jones & Laughlin 1/4. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem dipped small fractions.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler each gave up a point or better despite reports the industry was planning heavy production this month. American Motors fell 1/4.

Du Pont dipped 2 in the chemicals, with Allied Chemical and Monsanto down more than 1 apiece. Northwest Industries dropped 2 in the rails. Missouri Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western all were down one or better.

Everybody's Business

Local businessmen — keep guard up

HARRISBURG — Fifteen complaints were lodged by local businessmen who were victimized by a smooth-talking salesman who sold them a new advertising scheme — but failed to produce any ads.

His method of operation, Robert Lutz, administrative officer for the Bureau of Consumer Protection reports, was to contact local businessmen and sell them a "contract" for $39 or up.

The contract states the businessmen were to receive "stamps" to give to customers to paste in a booklet. A filled booklet entitles the customer to a free bowling game at a local bowling alley.

As part of this contract, this salesman promised advertising space in this bowling alley as well as newspaper ads.

Pointed complaints were lodged with the Bureau of Consumer Protection when this man failed to perform any of these services and refused to refund their money.

Bureau of Consumer Protection deputy attorney General Benjamin F. Kirk advised these complainants that they should file charges with a justice of the peace against this salesman.

The grounds were the acceptance of money from each complainant under fraudulent pretenses — a criminal offense in Pennsylvania — which could be prosecuted by the local district attorney.
